

Nikos Steves studied cinematography and scriptwriting at the State University of New York where he received his Bachelor of Arts degree before embarking on a career in television production.

A native of New York, his early years included working with Coca-Cola and PBS before moving to Los Angeles where he was a staff Producer/Director creating original programming for cable television. From there he moved to Atlanta to establish his own video production company. Along the way he worked with other media artists and professionals to grow Atlanta's nascent independent film and video production community.

Now, Nikos turns his attention to promoting Christianity through book writing and podcasting endeavors.
